Tanker Smashes Fishing Vessel, 15 Persons Die

Boston, Nov. 29 (AP)—Fifteen fishermen of a 17-man crew perished last night when the 10,000-ton tanker Ventura smashed into the stern quarter of the 170-ton trawler Lynn in Boston harbor.

None of the 50 crewmen on the Texas oil company tanker were injured.

The sea was calm and the night clear at the scene of the crash—a 500-yard wide channel only six miles from the Boston fish pier.

Coast guard observers said 13 of the victims went down with the trawler, "trapped in its steel hull like sardines in a can," while eating their evening meal or working in the engine room.

The other four were plucked from the water by one of several boats in the vicinity, but two died later in a hospital.

Capt. J. Carl McNamara, 41, of Medford, one of the survivors, said the crash came with such little warning that he didn't even have time to give an abandon ship order.

Helmman John J. King, 40, of Winthrop, the other survivor, said the Lynn, went down in about a minute. "The ship flipped over like a fish on the starboard side," he said.

S. O. Pederson of Port Arthur, Texas, skipper of the tanker, told the coast guard the fishing vessel "cut across our bow... and we rammed her."

Both vessels were outward bound—the Lynn for Georges Bank, 180 miles east of Boston, and the Ventura for Philadelphia after discharging gasoline here.

Within minutes after the disaster, 15 coast guard vessels were dispatched to the scene to join fishing boats already scanning the waters for survivors or bodies.

From overhead, a coast guard plane dropped flares to light up the area for surface searches.

About 50 relatives and friends of the Lynn's crewmen gathered at the fish pier looking out at the scene. They could see the ships there silhouetted against the clear sky by the flares.

Some became hysterical when, after several long hours, only four of the Lynn's crew were brought ashore. They seemed to sense that no more would be brought in alive.

All the Lynn's crewmen were residents of greater Boston.

The coast guard and fishing vessels searched the waters far into the night but all they found up to dawn were empty life preservers and bits of wreckage.

The water is about 40 feet deep where the collision occurred.

The toll brings to 20 the number of fishermen who lost their lives in Massachusetts waters in less than 48 hours.

Five crewmen perished when the Gloucester drifter Mary M. smashed against a rock during a storm near Cuttyhunk early Tuesday morning.

Commander of WACs Resigns From Service

Camp Breckinridge, Ky., Nov. 29 (AP)—Capt. Johnita Heslinga, commanding officer of the Wac detachment here, resigned "for the good of the service" and nothing else.

That statement was issued yesterday by Col. Barney Daughtry, chief of staff at Camp Breckinridge. He denied there was any connection between the resignation and the recent conviction of six Wac sergeants for slapping another Wac.

Miss Heslinga returned to her home at New Sharon, Iowa. She declined to comment on her resignation.

He was asked if she was requested to resign. "I will say only that Capt. Heslinga resigned her commission for the good of the service," answered Colonel Daughtry, who refused to explain further.

The six Wacs, who were court-martialed and convicted Nov. 3 of beating Pfc. Carol Ann Kiere, 20, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, were identified as:

Grace L. Morton, San Lorenzo, Calif.; Juliette V. Monte, Pecos, N. M.; Marjorie L. Sluck, Santa Cruz, Calif.; Edith N. Brown, San Angelo, Tex.; Edna H. Whitman, Preble, N. Y.; and Margy G. Long, Fort Madison, Iowa.

They were given prison terms ranging from one to 12 years on an assault and battery conviction. All are being held here pending a review of the case by the Camp Breckinridge commanding general.

The Wacs allegedly beat Private Kiere on Oct. 4 after she testified at a courtmartial involving Cpl. Frances Menusan, a friend of the convicted women and the daughter of Mrs. Henri Menusan.

Mrs. Menusan, 25, was given a general discharge.

Industrialist Arthur Temple Succumbs

Texasarkana, Nov. 29.—Arthur Temple, aged 57, board chairman of Temple Cotton Oil Company and president of Southern Pine Lumber Company, died at a hospital here Wednesday morning, shortly after he suffered a heart attack. He had been ill several days.

Mr. Temple also was president of Temple Lumber Company which operates a sawmill at Pineland, Texas and 33 retail lumber yards in Texas; president of Temple Manufacturing Company, which operates a box factory at Dallas and several distributing warehouses and a vice president of Southland Paper Mills, Inc. of Lufkin, Tex., which manufactures newsprint.

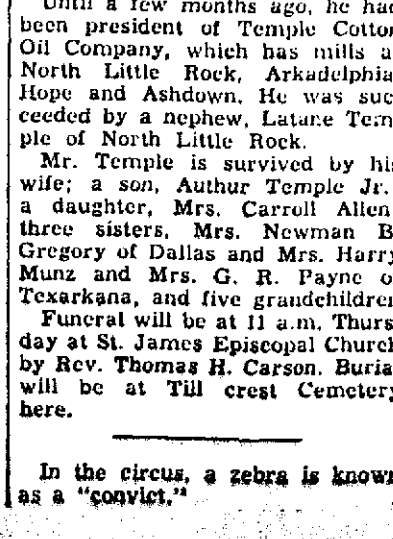

He went to work in 1916 for Southern Pine Lumber Company, which was founded here by his father, the late T. L. Temple. He became sales manager, then vice president and, upon the death of his father in 1933, president. Southern Pine operates one of the biggest sawmills in Texas at Diboll.

Until a few months ago, he had been president of Temple Cotton Oil Company, which has mills at North Little Rock, Arkadelphia, Hope and Ashdown. He was succeeded by a nephew, Latare Temple of North Little Rock.

Mr. Temple is survived by his wife; a son, Arthur Temple Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Carroll Allen; three sisters, Mrs. Newman B. Gregory of Dallas and Mrs. Harry Munz and Mrs. G. R. Payne of Texasarkana, and five grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at St. James Episcopal Church by Rev. Thomas H. Carson. Burial will be at Hill crest cemetery here.

Confidence in Industrial Future of U. S. Seen in Long Term Expansion Loans

Prescott Lions Plan Radio Sale for Yule Funds

By SAM DAWSON

New York, Nov. 29 (AP)—Long-term confidence in America's industrial future is shown today in the tone of more than a half billion dollars plunked down on the barrel head by some of the nation's most conservative investors.

Huge long-term loans to Union Carbide & Carbon Corp. and to Westinghouse Electric Corp. and a smaller one to Caterpillar Tractor Co., are only a part of the expansion programs under way in the chemical, electronic, and farm implement industries. But they point a dramatic finger at the underlying belief in an expanding economy here, no matter what happens in international affairs.

The announcements that insurance companies, savings banks, pension funds and universities were putting up the money came at the time the soldiers in Korea were enjoying their one-day holiday from shooting. Some saw in this assurance that no matter what happens to the troops, industrial expansion at home is assured, whether for defense or for raising standards of living.

And the announcements follow predictions by bankers that the petrochemical industry will expand six times by 1960.

The Westinghouse loan of $250 million on notes running to 1981 will help finance the company's $296 million expansion program, involving 97 projects, and designed to boost productive capacity by 50 per cent.

Union Carbide is borrowing $300 million from two insurance companies on 100-year notes, without sinking fund provisions. The insurance companies are...

Local French War Bride Is Now U. S. Citizen

Federal Judge Harry J. Lemly presided in a ceremony in U. S. Federal Court at Texasarkana yesterday in which five persons of foreign birth became citizens of the U. S.

An Italian surgeon, a German engineer, two German and French war brides were administered oath of allegiance. Included was Mrs. Denise Armandine Hinton, 27, French-born wife of Malcolm Hinton of Hope R. 1.

The others were Dr. Eugenio Franceschi, 57, Texasarkana, former of Italy; Eleonore Joffe, 31, Magnolia, native of Germany and Anna McCoy, 23, Stamps, native of Germany.

Mrs. Hinton arrived in the U. S. in November 1947, the war bride of M. E. Hinton, former U. S. army captain. They were married earlier in 1947 in Fontainebleau, France.

Since that time Mrs. Hinton has been studying requirements necessary before a foreign born person can become a naturalized U. S. citizen.

Retail Prices on Pork, Eggs Show Drop

By The Associated Press

Retail prices of most pork items, eggs and several fresh vegetables eased this week. Butter climbed one to six cents a pound in many places, reflecting a tighter supply situation.

Consumer food buying generally was reported slow following the Thanksgiving feast shopping last week.

The sharpest reductions reported were for various pork cuts. Center cut pork chops for example were marked down two to as much as 15 cents a pound in some market centers.

The agriculture department headlined pork and apples as most staples after week of working higher.

Most beef items were unchanged this week, although prime rib roasts fell back as much as eight or nine cents a pound in a few places. Poultry prices were mostly steady.

Among the week-end shopping specials being offered by many major chains were: canned soups, corned beef hash, baked beans, oranges, grapefruit, fresh broccoli, grape jam and pineapple juice.

Oranges, raisins and turkeys top the agriculture department's national list of platters for the month of December. The list is compiled to help promote consumption of foods in heavy supply and usually comparatively low-priced.

Other on the list: Apples, canned and frozen concentrated orange juice, dried prunes, broilers and fryers, pork, frozen whitening and ocean perch fillets, canned tuna, cottage cheese, nonfat dry milk solids, and honey.

Every Man Dreams and the Dreams Usually Manage to Vanish as in This Case

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—Look, by the time you read this tale, it will be time to go to bed. Then will you seek your sleep? There are no birds flying so late.

Here is your story:

It is about a wondrous bird... The bird that all men love and always flies away. She has many names... But one man knew her as Hermoine. If you say that name softly as if you liked it, it has a bell tone to it—far away.

Why the way I talk about it you would think she really were a woman—and near. And yet she is—how far? Tell me the miles in desire?

I don't know just why I joined the bird watchers. I guess they all had just been looking for something they hadn't been able to find—and figured it would have wings if they did find it. And I guess I must have felt that way, too.

Anyway I was restless, and thus I felt heavy upon me, and to go with them I lifted a little of the weight.

Really, I guess, the sad catalogue of bird watching meant nothing to me. But it gave me a kind of discipline of feathers. I counted the colors and the names of birds as a duty and an opportunity as I saw them—my rosary of wings.

Each had a separate personality, anchored to something I had known. The wren was a fretful wilder, tied to her children and trying to rule the world. The thrush was Caruso in the bush, saying the Metropolitan Opera needed him and all he required was a platform as a twig. The finches, the sparrows—they were bows and arrows in my heart. The crow was a stateship politician, wary of all. The hawk and the eagle were destiny, and I bid as I spied up at them.

Oh, the cloud of hovering feathers...

Production of Defense Items Behind Schedule

By EDWIN D. HAKINSON

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Production of defense items has "fallen dangerously behind schedule," a senate subcommittee reported last night, and it recommended that the government "take a greater bite out of civilian production."

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas), chairman of the armed services subcommittee set up to keep an eye on the military preparedness program, said in a statement accompanying the report.

"Under any circumstances we will have to have both guns and butter. But somebody is going to have to decide how much butter and how many guns. Furthermore, that decision will have to be made in terms of the national defense instead of the national appetite."

In a critical 10-000-word report, the group reported "deliveries of defense hard goods—planes, tanks, ships, and guns—have fallen dangerously behind schedule."

The subcommittee suggested appointment of a new "procurement czar" with broad powers within the defense department.

It said this official might be a new undersecretary of defense or the present chairman of the munitions board, John S. Smith, given additional powers.

In any event, the report to the senate said defense production must get first claim and top priority on scarce materials, machine tools, and manpower.

The report said that, after meeting all needs to reach production targets fixed by top military strategists, any other resources should be used this way:

1. To expand the industrial base so that if an attack comes we will have the industrial capacity necessary to produce the enormous quantities of weapons and goods required by a total war.
2. To assure an adequate supply of critical war materials for essential wartime production.
3. To maintain as healthily a civilian economy at as high a rate of civilian production as possible in view of the more compelling demands upon our resources.

'Shoot to Kill' Order Revives Korean Action After Lull of a Day

Nobody Will Take the Blame But Order Did Exist Calling for Halt in Ground Fighting

By JOHN RANDOLPH

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 29 (AP)—(Delayed By Censorship) White House officials today said they had received a "shoot to kill" order from the Eighth Army in Korea, but that the order was not to be taken literally.

Despite all official denials, they are known to exist at the Eighth Army level where they had been first classified as "top secret."

Army officers, alarmed at the furor the news has caused in Washington and elsewhere, refused to talk any more.

But the facts of military life are so well known that it is possible, with considerable hope of accuracy, to make some deductions.

First, calling a halt to Allied offensive action in Korea is not entirely a military matter. Like most major decisions in this war, it involves political policy and decision.

Consequently, it is logical to assume that the orders did not originate at General James A. Van Fleet's Eighth Army headquarters. Backing this up is another piece of evidence—Van Fleet's often repeated statements that he opposes inaction and stalemate in his army in order to prevent it "going soft" and becoming ripe for a sudden enemy attack.

The next higher command above the Eighth Army is General Matthew B. Ridgway's Far Eastern headquarters in Tokyo.

Even at that level, although "SCAP" does deal in political matters—mostly involving Japan—it is stretching belief too far to think Ridgway would act entirely on his own.

A command as important as Ridgway's would likely have some discretion in phrasing such an order, or in timing it, but it is inconceivable—militarily speaking—that even SCAP would call off the ground war without consulting superiors.

The only higher headquarters that Ridgway answers to are the Pentagon and the President as commander in chief. The Washington denials by White House Press Secretary Joseph Short said there was no "cease fire" in Korea.

Strictly speaking that is true. There is firing from both sides, although very little by normal standards. But the denials did not deny that a danger had been put on offensive ground action.

It is now known that the orders at Eighth Army were classified as "top secret"—the highest government category of secrecy. As required by regulations they went only to officers directly concerned with the action required—in this case the chain of command.

Garden Clubs to Landscape Junior High Grounds

Officers and directors of Hope Federation of Garden Clubs in a recent meeting at the home of its president, Mrs. B. L. Rettig, heard reports of committee activities and planned new projects.

Mrs. Leroy Spates, chairman of the bulb project committee, told the group that daffodil bulbs had been planted on the boulevard leading to Fair park and that 400 tulip bulbs were planted only this week. All shrubs in the plot that died will be replaced before Christmas.

Mrs. Spates also requested that all club treasurers pay their $10 city dues before January 1.

A motion was made by Mrs. R. L. Branch that the City Federation of Garden Clubs accept the responsibility of landscaping the yard surrounding the new Junior High School building. The motion carried.

Mrs. Alfred Brannon volunteered to plan the landscaping.

The group also made plans to decorate the city Christmas tree which was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crank. This project is under the direction of the Rose and Wisteria Garden Clubs.

Clubs represented were the Dahlias, Iris, Lilacs, Wisteria, Nandinas, Rose, Gardenia, Camellia, Azalea and Daffodil.

Asks Order to Open Dam's Flood Gates

Yellville Nov. 29 (AP)—There was a difference of opinion today on whether the rising waters of Bull Shoals dam reservoir had isolated the Midway community, a small mountain village north of here.

Roy Sizemore of Yellville Mountain Echo reported yesterday that about 25 families of Midway were marooned when water from the reservoir washed over a road connecting the community with Yellville, Ark.

Sizemore said the only way to reach the town was by boat.

However, at Little Rock, Col. Hans Holmer of the U. S. district engineers said the reservoir, swollen by recent heavy rains of the White river, had only cut Midway's "favorite road." He said residents of the community had another way out, but he didn't elaborate.

Some of the residents of Midway agreed with engineer but they said the other road would force them to go about 30 miles out of the way. It's only 12 miles from Midway to Yellville over the road that now is under water.

They said that high water on the main route prevented their children from attending school and had disrupted normal mail and transportation service.

At nearby Mt. Home, Ark., Lincoln Shuman, acting engineer in charge of the multi-million dollar Bull Shoals dam, said there was another route out of Midway but it was a mountain trail and passage would be difficult.

Sherman said everything "humanly possible" was being done to relieve the condition which he described as temporary.

The community of Midway is not endangered.

Marion county officials have gone into federal court with a lawsuit against the United States government over the flooded road.

The petition, filed by Attorneys Arthur Wood of Yellville and Smith Henley of Harrison, Ark., asked the court to order the engineers to open the flood gate to drain off excessive water.

A hearing has been set for Dec. 6 at Fort Smith.

Engineers said opening the gates virtually would be impossible as it would flood the area below the dam where construction now is underway on the powerhouse for the Bull Shoals dam.

Construction of the dam, which backs up water of the White river in north Arkansas and south Missouri, was completed earlier this month.

"People who have talked with President Truman recently have said he will not run," the senator said.

To Send Cook to California Death Cell

El Centro, Calif., Nov. 29 (AP)—The criminal savagery of William Edward Cook, a 23-year-old pint-sized desperado who kidnaped nine persons and killed six of them, had been halted by California justice.

Cook, product of wretched environment in a bleak and desolate abandoned mining section near Joplin, Mo., was sentenced yesterday to death in San Quentin gas chamber for the murder of a Santa Fe salesman, Robert H. Dewey.

The five-foot, four-inch self-styled badman already was under five sentences of 60 years each in connection with the kidnap-murders of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser and their three children of Alwood, Ill. The sentences were to be served consecutively.

The federal director of prisons, James V. Bennett, may now order the transfer of Cook from the federal prison at Alcatraz Island to California's San Quentin, where the killer will await action of the state supreme court on his appeal.

for a review, automatic under California law.

If no reversible error is found by the high court, the federal authorities then may surrender technical custody so that Cook may pay the supreme penalty. The department of justice said in Washington that the attorney general will await receipt of formal papers before transferring Cook to California's jurisdiction.

Under public document 90, passed by congress and signed by the President last summer, Cook would have been eligible for parole only 15 years of his 3-year sentence.

Superior Judge Luray J. Mosser said he found no extenuating circumstances in his study of trial testimony or of the transcript of grand jury testimony that was made available to him by stipulation. He branded the killing of Dewey as premeditated and deliberate and said it was coupled with the perpetration of a felony, the robbery of Dewey.

Cook twice uttered feeble, almost inaudible "no's" when the court asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. He showed no visible emotion as the court ordered the death penalty, but as soon as it was delivered two of the 10 husky

Canned Potatoes to Cost More

Washington, Nov. 29 (AP)—Canned sweet potatoes are due to cost housewives two to three cents a can more under a government order issued today authorizing Southern canners to increase their prices immediately.

The office of price stabilization said the 1951 Southern sweet potato crop is the smallest in years—about half of average production. Average was 100 million bushels.

As a result, OPS said, canners in the South will be forced to raise prices for the crop.

Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi are having to pay higher prices. There are no ceiling prices for raw sweet potatoes. Canners compete with fresh potato buyers in obtaining the slightly less than five percent of the supply used for processing.

OPS said that if adjustments to take care of the higher raw material costs were not provided, some canners would face financial hardship and possibly bankruptcy.

Increases allowed canners range from 15 cents a dozen for popular No. 2 size cans to 75 cents a dozen for big No. 10 commercial containers. They may not exceed specific maximum prices provided in the regulation.

OPS estimated the increase for

DOROTHY DIX

Withdrawn Child

Dear Miss Dix: I have four children, three of whom have the same ambitions and personalities. They are able to work and get ahead in any line of endeavor. The fourth, a girl of 14, is only interested in church, is afraid of criticism and crawls into a shell. She does not have dates yet. Her father thinks we should put a stop to all church doings and make her get out into something else. I'm on the fence. I think no harm can come of church and I'm afraid if we take the other angle she may go all out in other directions. Her father is very dominant and she resents his hard ruling and resents me for staying with him. The other children have adjusted themselves to it.

Answer: Your husband has been lucky in making you and three of his children conform to his dominating ways; he apparently has found his Waterloo in the youngest child. Church to her provides security and refuge from the tyranny and uncertainty she has at home. Her father undoubtedly realizes this too; hence his desire to get her away from the one place that represents peace to her.

Parents Failing Her
The adolescent years are difficult ones for an impressionable child. The youngster needs loving guidance through this period, and your daughter does not have that security. Her parents are failing her at a time when she needs them most. Won't her father listen to reason and be more understanding with her? She does seem to be working out her own destiny with amazing clarity, but if she must depend entirely on her own resources, she will eventually erect a barrier between herself and family that will never be broken down. Don't let this happen, for your own sake and your daughters' too. Don't make her give up her church activities, but try gently to divert her attention into other channels, too. Her fear of criticism and of new undertakings is nothing but fear of her father applied to her outside life. If you can, by any means, convince your husband of the harm being done to his daughter, he may change. Talks with the clergyman of your church, and with the child's teachers may also prove helpful.

Dear Miss Dix: The parents of my boy friend are putting him through college. He has two more years to go. We want to get married as soon as possible because we miss each other so much. I know we are young (I am 18, he's 20). I make $30 a week and would like to know how we can get married and be together while he finishes college.

Answer: It is extremely difficult for a young man to get through college and maintain a home at the same time. In recent years many boys have done it, but they were being aided by the government and were older than your friend. I would advise you to wait until your young man has finished school. With a life time ahead of you don't jeopardize your own happiness or his chances for an education by marrying now. His parents probably have an opinion in the matter too, and as they are making the sacrifice to see that he gets a college degree, they should be consulted about your problem too. If you begin married life by defying the wishes of others, you're making a very wrong start.

Dear Miss Dix: Is it considered bad taste for a wife to engage in social activities that exclude her husband?

Answer: There are certain activities that must be pursued by the wife alone, and rather than being in bad taste it is almost obligatory for her to join them. Women's clubs are doing marvelous work today with youth problems and civic improvement. Most meetings of this type are held during the day so they seldom interfere with the household routine as it concerns the husband.

Such activities as dances, or parties where couples usually attend together, are another point. Unless the group is made up of very close friends, and her husband has a good reason for not attending the wife should stay away, too.

Generally Fair Weather in U. S.
By The Associated Press
It was generally fair weather over most of the nation today. The only rainy areas were along the South Atlantic coast and in the Northwest Pacific states.

Cool weather continued over most of the east and south central parts of the country. But temperatures were comparatively mild in the West except over the plateau region and the central and southern Rockies.

Northern New England reported the lowest readings early today with the mercury near zero in some areas.

The chemical company has five main groups of products: plastics; alloys and metals; chemicals; electrodes, carbons and batteries; industrial gases.

Its greatest future expansion appears to be in the field of petrochemicals—the synthetics and plastics made from petroleum products.

Other chemical companies are also expanding at a great rate. Dow Chemical is spending $35 million, part of it borrowed, to expand its petrochemical and plastic facilities. American Cyanamid is putting $45 million into a southern plant producing the chemicals for new synthetic fibers. DuPont plans to spend at least $100 million annually until 1955 in expanding its plants. Monsanto and allied chemical are also planning huge expansions.

At the meeting of the Investment Bankers Association at Hollywood Beach, Florida, this week the bankers were assured by one of their committees that the petrochemical industry is due to expand six-fold within the next eight years.

The Caterpillar Tractor long-term loan of $35 million will be used to finance an expansion program in York, Penn., and Joliet and Peoria, Ill.

McClellan
Says He Bought Coat

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said last night he paid for a fur coat he gave his wife for Christmas last year.

He said Mrs. McClellan picked out the coat at a firm recommended by the wife of T. Laird Caudle, recently fired assistant U. S. attorney general.

The senator added: "I do not know the name of the firm. I do know I paid for it."

In Washington, Caudle told a house subcommittee investigating tax scandals yesterday that his wife had obtained a fur coat at less than full price—through Jacob Landau, New York tax attorney. He testified that Mrs. McClellan and the wife of former Secretary of the Army Kenneth T. Egan also obtained coats through Landau.

Sen. McClellan is attending a meeting of the Mississippi Valley Flood Control association here.

13 Stranded Hunters Rescued

Flagstaff, Ariz., Nov. 28 (AP)—A sheriff's party has rescued 13 of approximately 30 elk hunters marooned for five days by heavy snows in rugged east-central Arizona country.

The rescue party reached two of seven hunters' camps last night. All 13 hunters were reported in good condition.

The camps are in a mountainous area about 80 miles southeast of Flagstaff.

The rescuers, led by Sheriff J. Perry Francis, set out from Flagstaff yesterday with a snowplow, other heavy equipment, medical supplies and food. Two other rescue groups also headed for the marooned hunters, one from Globe, Ariz., and another from a lumber camp near Winslow, Ariz.

Sheriff Francis radioed word that he had reached two of the camps to his office here.

The first report of the hunter's plight was brought out by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Tonopah, Ariz., who reached Long Valley Monday. Their story was radioed to Flagstaff from the Long Valley ranger station, about 55 miles southeast of here.

Reds Refuse to Ban Army Buildups

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 28 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators flatly refused today to ban military buildups in Korea during an armistice or to set up joint inspection teams to police the truce.

The Red stand led Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief negotiator for the United Nations command, to express suspicion the Reds might be planning to resume fighting after a temporary truce.

Joy told newsmen "the Communists came out in the open and said they were completely opposed to our principles" for inspection teams and guarantees against military buildups.

"They brought up the question of withdrawal of foreign troops," Joy reported. "They said that with the withdrawal of foreign troops the problem would be settled."

"You see what we are up against?" the admiral asked. "While truce negotiators bumped into this new stumbling block at Panmunjom, fighting faded away along the 145-mile provisional cease-fire line agreed upon Tuesday."

Chinese troops played volleyball within sight of doughboys on the central front. Allied patrols were reported called off in the west. Even the thunder of artillery faded to a whisper.

The quiet led the U. S. Eighth Army to issue a formal warning: "There is no cease-fire in Korea. There is hope, but that hope must not be sabotaged by wishful thinking."

At Panmunjom truce negotiators spent most of Wednesday's session arguing over Allied demands that a truce agreement provide guarantees that military status quota be maintained.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1951
By King Features Syndicate.

London—The discussion of his majesty's gracious speech to the British parliament, written by Winston Churchill and others to express the intentions of the new administration, naturally has been a very serious business. Yet, life must go on and even though 300,000 houses must be built, some time to replace dwellings that were bombed out or to give homes to families who have never had individual homes, after all, pelicans do not simply vanish into thin air, do they?

So it was not incongruous, really, but quite in order that in the midst of many matters that may have seemed more serious, Mr. Edward Wakefield, of Derbyshire West, a Conservative, should ask the minister of works what had happened to the pelicans that used to inhabit the lake in St. James's park. Not incongruous at all. After all, this is public business, isn't it?

Mr. Eccles, in a written reply, duly recorded in Hansard, the congressional record of the British parliament, stated that there had been, indeed, until recently, two pelicans in St. James's. They had died at the age of 60 on Oct. 13. He had been blind for some time and was kept on Duck Island. The other, a much younger bird, died on October 27 of lung disease. The right sort of birds were hard to get but the department were trying to replace these amiable inhabitants of St. James's and meanwhile, the zoological society of London, had kindly lent one.

A few days later the government were able to advise the public that a number of replacements had been promised by persons in Texas and Louisiana so the question was not merely in order but profitable.

Meat supplies were at a dangerous level, as Lord Woolton, the president of the council, said that day and the stocks were worse now than they had been at any time during the submarine warfare in the war. It was not a bad thing for a government coming into power to let the people know what they had inherited. They were in for a thin time unless the government could get the people to produce more goods to sell abroad to get money to buy food.

True, only too true. But nevertheless the gin trap was a cruel device used to catch hares and rabbits and other small animals and spring traps could be dangerous if set in the open, so Lord Elton offered a bill to prohibit the manufacture, sale or exposure for sale or use or possession or custody of gin traps and to regulate the setting of spring traps in the open. There is no excuse to use cruel means of trapping hares and rabbits. Not British, you know.

Mr. Peter Freeman, of Newport, a labor, or socialist, member, thought the time opportune to alter the present coinage to allow for ten pennies in the shilling, instead of 12, as a preliminary step toward a decimal system. Mr. R. N. Butler, exchequer, said in a written reply that this would involve an impossible burden on the present resources of material and labor so the matter is in abeyance. The fact that foreigners lose millions of pounds every year trying to figure percentages in sterling. To be sure, on percent of one thousand pounds is ten pounds but quick now, what is one percent of three pounds eleven shillings—thruppence-ha'penny? You see?

The king's speech is not such a document as Mr. Churchill would waste any of his operative hot licks on. It is a statement of a program and, in this case, Churchill was up against it for a program and stalling for time on the pretext that his crowd would have to examine the books and take inventory. Mr. Churchill is vain of his command of the mother tongue and his imagery but in this case not only was the speech done in the king's name but it was delivered by a reader in the absence of the king, who is still very sick.

It is an ancient custom when debate is about to begin on the king's speech to move discussion of "the outlawry bill," an old relic that has been kicking round since the days of Robin Hood. There is no point in this whatever and they never do discuss the outlawry bill.

Mr. Beverly Baxter, who was born in Canada and sits for a London constituency where he does not live, a common custom in the lower house, explains that the motion to take up the outlawry bill is a means of reminding the king that commons still retains its independence. The idea seems to be that one of these days commons actually will take up the outlawry bill and ignore the royal speech by way of admonishing the king that the Rt. Hon. gents can think of nothing of less consequence than his remarks. If that is funny or whimsical, it is all right with me, but that boast of the independence of commons seems empty in view of the acknowledged fact that many of the members are bought and paid for by the unions or the "interests" and make no bones about it. Huey Long once looked over his Louisiana legislature and said that with two exceptions, who were the opposition, he could buy and sell them like so many sacks of potatoes. The English M. P.'s and the people don't think this practice affects the integrity of parliament and this just goes to show.

One of my London colleagues advises me that last year during a debate on matters of solemn im-

Five Subpoenaed by Crime Probers

Little Rock, Nov. 28 (AP)—The Arkansas legislative council's crime and ethics committee will meet here tomorrow to look into gambling in the state.

Quachita county committee chairman, announced last night that five persons had been subpoenaed to appear at the hearing and said all were connected with gambling. At the same time, Pulaski County Prosecutor Tom Downie said he would give the committee the names of gamblers who have registered under the new federal tax law.

Purifoy identified those for whom subpoenas had been issued as:

E. C. Carnes, Arlie Payne, and H. P. McDonald, all of Hot Springs; Fred Swan of Forrest City and Mike Elloch of Helena.

Downie said records in the Little Rock office of the bureau of internal revenue showed that only two Arkansians had paid the $50 federal gambling tax. He said they are Garnett Tucker of Hot Springs and Ray Chambers of Jonesboro.

Thursday's hearing probably will be open to the public, Purifoy said.

port one of the brothers made a legislative issue of the transportation of pregnant turtles by airplane. The Rt. Hon. gent had been advised that air sickness caused distress to the pregnant turtles and wanted a law passed to forbid such transportation during pregnancy. Thursday's hearing probably will be open to the public, Purifoy said.

McCarthy Not to Take Part in Campaign

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today he probably will take no active part in the battle for Wisconsin's delegation to the 1952 Republican presidential nominating convention.

Unless he changes his mind, McCarthy told a reporter, he doesn't even plan to ask to be one of the delegates to the convention. "I expect I'll have my hands full running for re-election to the senate and I don't intend to take any part in the presidential nominating race," he said.

The Wisconsin senator declined comment on a statement by Rep. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) that while Senator Taft (R-Ohio) doesn't share McCarthy's views and believes the Wisconsin senator is "too vocal," Taft is "not going to kick him in the teeth."

Taft, an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination, is coming heavily on a victory in the April 1 Wisconsin primary to keep his campaign for delegates rolling at full speed.

Bender said if McCarthy is a delegate, Taft wants McCarthy's vote.

Previously Taft's associates had said Wisconsin would be the only primary in which his name would be entered outside of Ohio, but recently they have been studying the possibility of trying the waters in New Hampshire. The March 11 New Hampshire contest is the first of the presidential year.

Republicans who are trying to get the party's nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower apparently do not expect him to object to their entry of his name in that primary. Gov. Sherman Adams has said Eisenhower will be entered. The general could take his name off the ballot only by positive action. He has declined to discuss politics.

Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) said the national Eisenhower-for-President committee doesn't at this time favor going into Minnesota's March 18 primary. If former Gov. Harold E. Stassen is to be a "favorite son" candidate there,

Lazaro Cardenas was the first president of Mexico to be elected to a six-year term.

George M. Pullman, designer of sleeping coaches on railroads, was born in Brocton, N. Y.

11 Airmen Die in PBM Crash

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 28 (AP)—A navy PBM (Martin Mariner) seaplane plunged into the ocean seven miles west of here yesterday, carrying 11 airmen to their death. It was San Diego's worst military plane disaster in a decade.

In another southern California plane crash, a B-29 bomber burst into flames near March Air Base, but its 13-man crew parachuted to safety.

An eyewitness to the PBM crash said the plane, a two-engine craft, plunged straight downward, hitting the water with a terrific splash.

"It was diving so fast, I thought it was a jet plane," said Donald Hibbard, truck driver. He said he was on a hill along the coast looking out to sea the time.

The navy said the plane, attached to Fleet Air Wing 14, on a routine training flight from the San Diego naval air station, broke into pieces when it struck. It did not burn, but soon sank. Cause of the crash was not immediately determined.

Three officers and eight enlisted men were aboard. Their names were withheld by the navy pending notification of the next of kin.

Four bodies were recovered. Search for additional victims will be continued today by navy and coast guard air-sea rescue craft.

Two years ago, ten men died in the wreck of a navy PBM. The plane crashed, exploded and sank in the ocean a quarter-mile off shore from the San Diego naval air station. Two other military planes crashed in this area in 1947. Nine persons were killed in both accidents.

Lieut. E. J. Sancholtz, the first pilot of the stricken B-29, ordered his crew out of the bomber when a wing blazed up as the plane was heading for a landing at

To Cull U. S. Government 'Termites'

New York, Nov. 27 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McManey says he and President Truman are ready to help expose and punish the "few" political "termites" in government.

In any opinion, McManey says, 99 out of 100 per cent of those entrusted with public office are honest and incorruptible.

He describes the others as "the termites we shall always have with us," and continues:

"The only way to deal with termites is to keep a sharp watch for them and get rid of them when ever they show up. That is just what the Democratic party is doing."

McManey's comments were made last night in his first major speech since becoming national chairman Oct. 31. He addressed a St. Paulite banquet of the Democratic national committee.

President Truman sent the dinner a message appealing for preparations that will make the Democratic party "a more moral, more energetic and strong in the material resources that will be required for a hard-fought campaign."

Both McManey and Mr. Truman, some observers believed, were laying the groundwork for the Democratic position on recent government scandals, including the investigations of the reconstruction finance corporation and the internal revenue service. Republicans already are using these issues to warn up for the 1952 presidential race.

McManey said that so long as he is Democratic chairman, his "watchword" will be a "public office is public trust."

Any man who betrays the people's trust in public office is a public enemy," he said. "Any man who betrays a public trust in a Democratic administration is an enemy of the Democratic party."

The chairman said neither party has "a monopoly on virtue," nor "a monopoly on evil."

He declared his own party is determined that no malfeasance in public office shall go unpunished.

McManey reviewed nearly 20 years of Democratic national administrations, sprinkling his history with praise of President Truman and jabs at a Republican party that he said has never "caught up with the American people since 1932."

On the international side, he said GOP leadership still is committed to isolationism, while the Truman administration's foreign policy has erased the possibility that "Soviet Russia might dominate the world today."

On the domestic side, McManey challenged Republicans to "face a farmer, or a working man, or a businessman and say: 'The group to which you belong was better off during the last Republican administration.'"

Eight Violent Deaths in State

By The Associated Press

Eight violent deaths have been reported in Arkansas during the first two days of this week.

The third traffic victim of the week was E. E. Sharp, 46, Magnolia Negro truck driver. He drowned when his truck overturned in a creek near Magnolia Tuesday night.

A tractor accident claimed the life of Leslie Halfacre, 15-year-old Pointon county youth Tuesday. He was pinned beneath the machine when it turned over about five miles west of Trumann, Ark. Three girls riding with him were thrown clear and escaped injury.

Fishing by Remora

The Chinese use the remora, or sucking fish, for catching turtles. A string is attached to the tail of the fish and it is released in the water. When it attaches itself to a turtle by means of the suction cup on top of its head, the fisherman pulls both up.

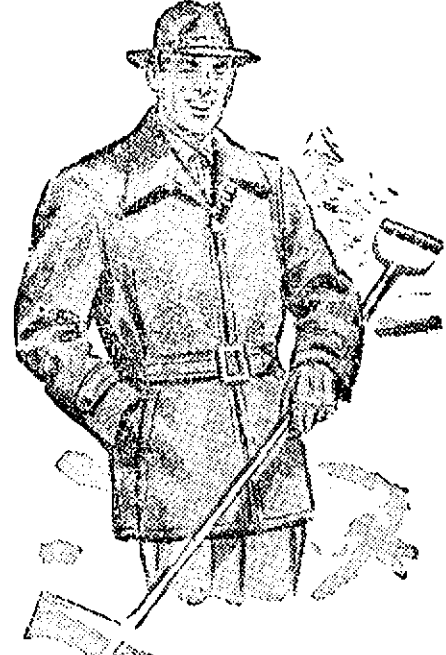

March Air Base near Riverside, Calif.

Sancholtz and the second pilot, Lieut. E. H. Burgess, the last to leave the big ship, banded near the blazing wreckage. They were only shaken up. The other 11 crew members were picked up by forest rangers and ranchers. None was injured seriously.

Mrs. Laura Tomlin of Homeland, which is near the crash scene, said she saw nine parachutes floating near "Then I saw the plane," she said. "It was on fire. Its wings came off and just before it hit, it exploded."
